In the death of Mr. Benton the country loses one of its marked public characters. He was a man of great force, but that force was of a personal rather than of an intellectual nature. An intense individuality characterized all that he said intense marviouanty characterized at that he said and did. His frame was large, his health robust, his nature burly. He was truculent, energetic, intrepid, willful, and indomitable. He always were a resolute and determined air, and, simply viewed as an animal, possessed a very command-ing aspect. He strode into public life with these qualities all prominent and bristling. Whenever he shone, he shone in the exhibition of them.— His intellectual powers always appeared as sub-His intellectual powers always appeared as sub-sidiary; they never took the lead, never appeared to be the propelling force in any of the marked epochs of his life. The leading points of his career were his land reform measure; his opposi-tion to the old United States Bnak; his expunging resolution; his war on Mr. Calhoun after his dis-appointment in the succession to the Presidency; and his hostility to the Compromise measures of 1850. In all these contests, at least in all but that for the reform of the land system he bore himself as a fighting man. He carried this so far as to allude, in one of his later Senatorial far as to allude, in one of his later Senatorial exhibitions, to a pair of pistols which he said had never been used but a funeral had followed.

Mr. Benton had been ten years in the Senate before he was known to the country as a prominent debater. The discussion on the United States Bank question brought him out fully, and of individuals deeply, and roused the intensest that town he writes the following letter, which is ardor of all partizan politicians. The debates were heated and fiercely personal. A hand-to hand political encounter overspread the country.

Washington, April 3, 1858. This contest suited Benton exactly. He loved the turmoil and the war, and he rose with each one can predict the result. Should both Houses successive exigency until he became, par excel lence, the champion of General Jackson's administration in its contest with the Bank. On one occasion, 1830-'31, he made a speech of four days. At the close of the fourth day, Mr. Calhoun sarcastically remarked that Mr. Benton had un sarcastically remarked that Mr. Benton had

The intellectual strength of Mr. Benton's efforts never impressed his great adversaries, Clay, Calhoun, and Webster. They never regarded him as belonging to their class, intellectually.—Yet they always appreciated and dreaded his great personal force. In no case did this peculiar Bentonian ability manifest itself more clearly constituted to the compton of consequence.

The people of Kansas be admitted under the Lecompton Constitution, and Mr. Calbung give certificates of election, as He has in dicated, no trouble can arise, as the Free State party will have the government in their hands, and of course will have no opposition of consequence.

Gen. Jackson had been censured by the Senate, in a resolution drawn by Mr. Clay, for acting "in derogation of the Constitu-tion." Mr. Benton set about to remove the cen sure by expunging it from the records. He has told how he accomplished this in his "Thirty lustrates the man perfectly. himself a fierce and malignant, but never, we think, a generous adversary. It is said that, on his death-bed, he has done full justice to Mr. Clay, in finishing his abridgement of the debates the only man, indeed, who offered, or was able to nish the brains of the debate any more than on to every ally. His temper was roused, and he hurled wrath and defiance at his enemies. On a anxious for a return of honorable peace and pros hurled wrath and defiance at his enemies. On a anxious for a return of honorable peace and prosquestion of parliamentary law, he came in imme diate conflict with Mr. Clay, who had the majority of the Senate with him and was determined to carry his point. Mr. Benton met him with equal resolution, and with a bull dog ferocity that caus proper, for publication. I intended to have ed his antagonist to recede and yield the point from considerations of expediency. Mr. Benton was allowed his way, after hours of violent struggle and a night's deliberation of the majority It was, to a very great extent, a triumph of his fighting qualities. Foote of Mississippi entered very largely into that debate, and persisted in dogging and attacking Benton. Benton, at last, bade him stop; he would bear no more of his insults. Foote continued in the same strain. Ben ton rose from his seat, and strode directly towards Foote, as if to throttle him on the spot. Foote fled, and Benton was checked: but Foote never uttered the name of Benton afterwards in the Senate. On another occasion Mr. Benton laid himself out to attack Mr. Calhoun. Hedid it with ability, but his bad blood, his ill-temper, his violeuce of manner, and gross personalities were the predominant characteristics of the attack. There was no pleasure to be derived from it merely as an intellectual demonstration. the contrary, it only impressed the hearer as repulsive and disgusting.

In all these examples, we see where Mr. Benton's power lay as a parliamentarian, debater, and a man. He never carried his point by winning or convincing, or by pure mental effort. He never reached his objects or accomplished his successes by mere force of oratory or intellect. never impressed his audience or the public by sheer strength of mind. It was his intense individuality and animal force, acting upon an intellect of common scope and character, that gave the devil prompted me-the devil prompted him all his triumphs. His industry was great, and his memory remarkable. His knowledge was large, but it was in the domain of facts. never rose to the consideration of scientific principles, and perhaps never even to the commoner field of philosophic generalization. For himself, he claimed to be a man of "measures," rather than of principles or ideas. We should further a crowd was discussing the Kansas question qualify this claim by saying that he was chiefly a man of 'facts.' His idea of currency and the 'gold' reform, which occupied him for many snooze, when one of the loudest, turning to him, years, were very crude; and, so far as we know, were never improved by after study or reflection. They found expression in the existing Sub-Treas ury system. Another favorite measure of his was a road to the Pacific, across the continent .-His services in establishing the preemption system in the disposition of the public lands were decide this bet, will you be so kind as to tell us ious, and their results have been eminent. ly beneficent, but we think the record of his principal "measures" must stop here

Mr. Benton's mental activity being confined to an inferior plane of action, however busy and industrious, however constant and indomitable he might be, the very nature of his efforts prevented been drunk for two weeks, but I had no idea that I from accomplishing much intellectually. We look in vain in the writings or speeches of such the liquor, and sloped. a man for any of the electric influences and inspiration which minds of a nobler mould often unconsciously impart. Of his personal called on her while at Richmond, and she thus peculiarities, his egotism was the most striking. It was a source of entertainment to his visitors, and his fond and considerate attentions to an invalid wife in her declining years offered a spec-tacle honorable to humanity. He was the pre-ceptor of his children, whom he taught with the same industry and assiduity that he always manifested in whatever he undertook. They were Bentonian in their ways, however, and did not all please him in the choice of their mates; but we believe they all, at last, had his entire approbation, the most repugnant of the matches to the paternal care, we believe, being the marriage of his daughter Ann to the late Republican candidate for the Presidency.

Mr. Benton's moral character as a public man is also deserving of very high praise. In his public acts, we believe, he always followed the dictates of an honest purpose. He did not legis-late for popularity, nor for pay, nor for any individual advantage in any way. He advocated and opposed public measures on the ground of what he considered to be their merits. His judgment may have been clouded by passion or par tisan feeling, as, no doubt, at times they were but we believe he was always true to his convic-tions. Of venality and corruption in legislation he had an instinctive abhorrence, and, during the thirty years of his Senatorial life, we do not think the perfect integrity of his votes on all subjects whether of a public or private character, was ever impugned. In this respect his example is worthy of the attention of all our rising public men, who, in this budding era of corruption, are likely to be tested by severer temptations than the statesmen of the past. Whatever else is unattainable in reputation to a legislator, the proud distinction of integrity is beyond no man's reach, and it is a virtue that is not likely to lose any of its lustre by being too common.

Spurgeon and the Lady .- A witty literary lady, well-known in London, was travelling the other day in a railway carriage. The only other occupant of the compartment in which she was seated was a fat, vulgar young man, with a white neckcloth, (soiled,) sleek hair, prominent teeth, and a self-satisfied air. The individual contrived very adroitly to make the conversation turn upon the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon. The dialogue soon became exceedingly warm and animated, the lady expressing the utmost aversion for the preacher in question, as an illiterate mountebank, and the gentleman extrolling him to the seventh heavens as the most glorious man of the age, and the Demosthenes of the pulpit.

On arriving at the station where the lady's ourney terminated, the gentleman said:

Democratic papers when discussing the record forced upon an unwilling people. of their adversaries, it is not the whole truth. It may not be improper to briefly state the facts of the case as they appear upon the State Journals.

Col. Hodges had been Public Printer for a number of years, and had been doing the work connected with his office for the same prices that had been charged by all those who had preceded him. In 1843 Mr. Tanner sent in a communication to the Legislature, to the effect that the charges made by Col. Hodges were unreasonable and that the work could be done for a sum much smaller than that which had been previously paid to Col. Hodges and those who preceded him in office. The Legislature then invited both of these gentlemen to send in proposals, stating the sum for which they would do the work. In obedience to this request, Mr. Tanner sent a communication to the appropriate committee stating at what prices he could afford to do the work, and then adds as follows:

make an average deduction on all the printing, of 20 per cent. It may be a little more or a little less. If it should be less, I am willing that the Auditor should be allowed to make the calculation at the end of a year's printing and reduce it to that standard. It is the only equitable mode I can determine on, by which the proposition can be reduced to practical operation, and I willing that the Legislature shall so change the present law as to make it conform to these prices, after the election, if it shall be the pleasure of that honorable body to give me the

Col. Hodges also made a reply, from which we clip the following extract:

If that be the case, I propose to perform the duties of the Public Printer for twenty-five per cent. less than the rates paid for the printing of the last session of the Legislature. I certainly do not make this offer because I can afford to do so, but simply because I do not in tend to be outdone in any thing that claims to proceed from a devotion to the public interest. I am unwilling to be ousted from an office, the duties of which I have endeavored to discharge, faithfully, by competition of this kind, and, therefore, I have determined to make an offer which would

It will be perceived by reading these extracts that Mr. Tanner proposed to do the Public Printing for 20 per cent. less than the rates at which Col. Hodges had been doing it, but that Col. GLASGOW, KY., December 23, 1857.

GLASGOW, KT., December 23, 1857.

Dear Sir:—Having disposed of our Printing Office in Elizabethtown, Ky., and removed to Glasgow with the view of permanently locating we purpose commencing the publication of a newspaper sometime during the month of February, to be entitled "THE GLASGOW FRLE PRESS." It will be devoted to General Literature, Politics, Agriculture, the Arts and Sciences, News, and especially to the promotion and advancement of the local and general interests of the town and county, and those adjacent. No pains or exertion on our part will be intermitted to secure due consideration for all local enterprises, that may be calculated to advance the general weal of the community.

An earnest effort will be made to render it a valuable family newspaper, acceptable to all parties, combining a variety of interesting and instructive subjects in its columns. Having had considerable experience in the business, and being practically familiar with its mechanical duties, we indulge the hope that we shall be enabled to subserve to some extent, the interests to which here Freze Press" will be dedicated.

American Politics at the present time, may be said very justly, to be in a chrysalis state. We do not design, in this Prospectus, to enter the domain of speculation. It is not necessary to the present purpose, or to define our political position. This may be defined very briefly. We are conscientiously opposed to the practices and the precepts of Modern bemocracy. We regard the Democratic party, as now constituted, essentially an alten party; and consider its aims and purposes, as avowed by its organs, practiced by it leaders, and developed in the present administration, pregnant with evil to the Union, in violation of the plan injunctions of the early fathers, and disastrous to American Party," promutgated at the Louisville Convention, a political creed, eminently adapted to present existencies. We believe the in the formation of the princil

Nationality. We recognize in the "Address of the American Party," promutgated at the Louisville Convention, a political cried, emtinently national, eminently conservative, and peculiarly adapted to present exigencies. We believe that in the fundamental principles of that organization may be found the panacea for many, if not all the political critis, which have disordered the country and fomented sectional strife, and which it is now in evident contemplation to aggravate by unwise and imprudent legislation.

Whilst we shall aim to be perfectly independent and honest in the expression of our views of public men and measures, we shall studiously observe courtesy and a proper respect for the opinions of others, whose convictions may lead them to differ with us. It is the peculiarity and the boast of American institutions, that they secure to each and every one the "free and untrammeled expression of his opinions." In no other government is this perfect freedom of opinion in the clizen tolerated, or considered compatible with the dignity of the State. Our whole system of government reposes upon this basis. Public opinion is here at once the source and the support of power. We cherish an appreciation of the great privilege, too exalted, to induce us to refuse to others what we are prompt to claim for ourselves. Hence the columns of the "Free Press" will at all times be open to well written, courteous articles, even though they may conflict with our individual opinions.

We invoke, in aid our enterprise, the support and Welevan and has since

> PROSPECTUS OF THE

"CENTRAL KENTUCKIAN." PUBLISHED IN LEBANON, KY.

Lebanon, since the completion of the Railroad, concenting it with Louisville, is a point of interest to a large section of country. There are hundreds of persons abroad who are in want of information upon various topics connected with it, such as the prices current, facilities for doing and having business done here, &c., and the citazens of Lebanon themselves, wish to inform the public at large, that it is one of the most enterprising and flourishing towns in the interior of the State, and that it ofters great inducements as a place of residence to men of almost every honorable trade and profession. To supply these wants, of people abroad and citizens at home, we have determined to publish "The Central Heatuckian"—a paper devoted to the Commercial, Agr cultural, Literary, and Moral welfare of the commonity in which it is circulated.

It is noped that we shall be able, by attention to the interest of all concerned, to supply a desideratum long Lebanon, since the completion of the Railroad.

nterest of all concerned, to supply a desideratum long felt.

Citizens of Lebanon, and of Marion and surrounding counties, to you, of whatever political party or religious seet, we look for support—and the more liberal that is, the larger and more entertaining will be our paper—for we are determined, if you will place in our hands the means, to make the Central Kentuckian worthy of your patronage.

To obtain this, however, we shall not sacrifice independence by pledging ourselves to any party or sect, yet we shall promise you Neutrality in Nothing. If we are not capable of choosing our subject matter, and of commenting upon all or any topic of public interest, in a manner which shall be at once courseous and inoffensive, we ought notto come before you as Editors. To be faithful journalists of passing events—candid critics of public in the control of the property of the public in the control of be faithful journalists of passing events—candid critics of pablic acis—and successful advocates of Truth, is the hight of our ambition.

TO all persons afflicted with Sexual Diseases, such as SPERMATORRHEA, SEMINAL WEAKNESS, IMPOTENCE, GONORRHEA, GLEET, SYPHILIS, the Vice of ONANISM.or SELF-ABUSE, &c, &c.
The HOWARD ASSOCIATION, in view of the awful destruction of human life, caused by Sexual diseases, and the deceptions practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, as a CHARITABLE ACT worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of diseases, in all their forms, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS, to all who apply by letter, with a description of their condition, and to give MEDICAL ADVICE GRATIS, to all who apply by letter, with a description of their condition, (age, occupation, habits of life, &c...) and in eases of extreme poverty, to FURNISH MEDICINES FREE OF (CHARGE. It is needless to add tha the Association commands the highest Medical skill of the age, and will furnish the most approved modern treatment. The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort, have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves, with renewed zeal, to this very important but much despised cause.
